

WRITING AND PAINTING

BY BRADLEY WIDMAN

It has occurred to me that when I paint , I think about writing and when I write I think about painting. Everything I write and paint, I live every day. They are my entire being they are my all. They compel me to be who I am and strive for the sacred, embracing the creative - reaping the sustenance. I produce my paintings in a state of monastic mindfulness they are seeds reminiscent of our divine nature.

THE MIND

The mind is continually giving birth to itself. Experiencing and viewing a work of art extends our thoughts and leads to the process of the rearranging and the rebuilding of the nucleus of our character.

CREATIVITY

Creativity is the result of the spirit embracing itself-nurturing its essence- revealing its light, mirroring God's creation and grasping the divine. I exalt the many worlds within .
